Then ſaid Howleglas ſuch maſtery can I d leſſe coſt. Then ſayde the woman I pray you me that cũning and I wyll giue you therefor you wyll haue, Then ſayd howleglas I muſt depart from hence, but when I come againe learne you that ſcience and learninge/and then he into the ſtable and ſadled his horſe & tooke ue and ſo departed from thence. But he tough his hoſtes that ſcience: but ſo departed,

How howleglas made hole all the ſicke folk were in the hoſpital, where the ſpere of our Vpon a time howleglas came to Northeb and he ſet vpon the churche dores and by Gaulde hall, and euery place that all the in that towne might know that he was a gre ſter of Phiſicke, That all ſicke he could make And then the maiſter of the ſpitle houſe, whe ſper of our Lord is, had many ſick folkes in hi then went the maiſter of the hoſpitall to how & aſked him if he coulde helpe ſicke men, or la and make them whole, & he would rewarde hi his owne pleaſure, Thã anſwered howleglas maiſter of the hoſpital, wyll ye geue me.cc, gol dens, and I ſhall recouer and make them hol ſikenes, & deaſes, and wyll haue no money fo ſicke parſons be deliuered out of the hoſpital, wordes pleaſed the maiſter of the hoſpital ve And he gaue him ſome money in his hande. morowe after came howleglas to the hoſpit men after him, & thã he aſked ỹ ſicke folke, o the other, what deſeaſe they had, and when h aſked them all then he made thẽ ſware vpon